Election/Restrictions

Restriction to one of the following inventions is required under 35 U.S.C. 121:

- I. Claims 1-16 are drawn to measuring the frequency difference between two consecutive maxima of flowing fluid, classified in class 73, subclass 657.
- II. Claims 17-20 are drawn to determining the composition of the fluid after recording the frequency difference between two consecutive maxima, classified in class 73, subclass 64.53.
- III. Claims 29-31 are drawn to correcting the phase difference, classified in class 73, subclass 579.

The inventions are distinct, each from the other because of the following reasons:

Inventions I and II are related as combination and subcombination. Inventions in this relationship are distinct if it can be shown that (1) the combination as claimed does not require the particulars of the subcombination as claimed for patentability, and (2) that the subcombination has utility by itself or in other combinations (MPEP § 806.05(c)). In the instant case, the combination as claimed does not require the particulars of the subcombination as claimed because all of the limitations of group II are not in the evidence claims of group I. The subcombination has separate utility such as determining the composition of the gas or a solid mixture.

Inventions I and III are related as combination and subcombination. Inventions in this relationship are distinct if it can be shown that (1) the combination as claimed does not require the particulars of the subcombination as claimed for patentability, and (2) that the subcombination has utility by itself or in other combinations (MPEP § 806.05(c)). In the instant case, the combination as claimed does not require the particulars of the subcombination as claimed because all of the limitations of group IV are not in the evidence claims of I. The subcombination has separate utility such as correcting the phase difference relative to a gas flow rate.

Inventions II and III are related as combination and subcombination. Inventions in this relationship are distinct if it can be shown that (1) the combination as claimed does not require the particulars of the subcombination as claimed for patentability, and (2) that the subcombination has utility by itself or in other combinations (MPEP § 806.05(c)). In the instant case, the combination as claimed does not require the particulars of the subcombination as claimed because all of the limitations of group IV are not in the evidence claims of group II. The subcombination has separate utility such as correcting the phase difference relative to a gas flow rate.

Conclusion

Because these inventions are distinct for the reasons given above and have acquired a separate status in the art as shown by their different classification, restriction for examination purposes as indicated is proper.

Applicant is advised that the reply to this requirement to be complete must include an election of the invention to be examined even though the requirement be traversed (37 CFR 1.143).
